

The secret of the LORD is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant. Mine eyes are ever toward the LORD; for he shall pluck my feet out of the net.” (Psalm 25:14-15)

Men love to blab far and wide everything they know and much they do not know, but the Scripture says, “It is the glory of God to conceal a thing.” (Proverbs 25:2) Ever since man believed the Satanic lie spoken in the Edenic garden that if you disobey God “ye shall be as gods, knowing...” he has sought in vain to know the secrets that God has reserved for Himself and those who fear and obey Him. He will never know what his thirsting soul longs for until he comes to fear and worship his Creator.

The secrets that God reveals to His people are not the carnal curiosities that the unconverted world hankers after. Such things as future events, details of the Second Coming of the Lord, and an order of endtime events do not concern the person who has fallen in love with Christ. The secrets he discovers are revelations of a personal nature, instructions for this present life, and blissful glimpses of the eternal glories of God with Whom we shall have eternal communion.

God makes a personal covenant with those who trustingly fear Him. He speaks to them His immutable promises of unspeakable peace and security. He causes them to cease from their worry, fretting and struggles, making them to know that He has sworn to be their Savior and Deliverer.

The person who trusts the Lord has his eyes fixed upon Him. He looks to God with an obedient look of service, waiting upon and delighting in each instruction from his Lord. He perceives his God with an humble look of reverence. He gazes upon Him with an admiring look of worship and wonder. His eyes search the countenance of God in the face of Jesus Christ in a studious look of meditation. The love of God holds him transfixed as he beholds the Redeemer with a tender gaze of affection.

Many snares are set for those who would obey God: traps that arise from our deceitful hearts and foolish lusts. Nets laid by men and the world system. Subtle entanglements arranged by the devil. But God will faithfully deliver all whose eyes are fixed trustingly upon Him.
